

JEANNETTE ROBERES

M.Ed.

SPEECH-LANGUAGE
PATHOLOGIST TURNED SOFTWARE ENGINEER

Professional Summary:

Jeannette has worked as a Speech Pathologist and Software Engineer. She released the book Technical Difficulties: Why Dyslexic Narratives Matter In Tech which marries her experiences. Her passion for exceptional learners has helped ignite conversations across multiple dimensions of diversity in tech. As the Chief Academic Officer of Bearly Articulating she strives to build actionable and equitable dialogue among technology professionals. Her topics of interest include Neurodiversity in Tech and Examining Implicit Bias and Diversifying the technology sector.

Spoken In:

The United Kingdom, France, Ghana, Kenya, Namibia, The Dominican Republic, Nigeria, Spain, Germany and The United Arab Emirates.

Spoken For:

Google, Microsoft, Guaranty Trust Holding, BT Group, WordPress, Northwestern University, Sacramento State University, Windsor University, Royal College of Speech & Language Therapists and Detroit Public Schools.

Featured In:

Detroit Free Press

The Washington Post

Where Language
Meets Technology